A Love Letter to My Wife,

During this month when we honor motherhood, I wanted to take a moment to express how much I absolutely adore you. I know that there are times when you feel that you have lost your appeal or that your ravishing beauty has faded over the years; but that is not the way it seems to me. Over the years, you have grown more and more attractive to me. In fact, in every way that you are adorned, whether very simply or bedecked in gold and jewels, I just can't wait to see you in your splendor. To think that you dress yourself in ways that you think will please me makes my heart leap for joy. I can hardly wait until our next encounter, our next time simply to be alone together.

And when we do come together, you prepare the greatest feasts for me. You adore me with gifts of song, and you declare the words that I have said with such delight and joy. You challenge all my children to hear and to obey my words, promising that they will enjoy long and happy lives when they do. You celebrate my arrival with instruments of every kind. I can't even pronounce some of their names. You dance and wave banners before me. You kneel before me and cry out before me and to me. Sometimes I blush with the extravagance of your expressions of love. And, the gifts that you pour out from your purses to bless me. I am giddy with delight when I see you sacrificing so much just because you can't really find a way to put words to your love for me.

Mostly, I love the children we have borne together. Who would have thought that we would have had so many? Each one is special and different. They are every skin color in the world and speak every language imaginable and I simply can't pick a favorite, can you? Actually, they are all my favorites, because they are all the products of our deep desire and love for each other.

If our love goes on until the stars go out, I can only imagine it becoming deeper and more delightful. You know what, you actually seem to be getting younger with the years. I can't believe you find me, such an old man, to be so virile and attractive still. But, I promise, my passion for you will never die out, weaken, fade, or, even, flicker. I still think you're to die for.

All My Love,

Jesus

The camp leadership team is highly vested in our kids and knows that many lifelong decisions for Christ are made during the wonderful times at camp. Due to issues such as Covid restrictions, social distance requirements and unavailability of camp staff, the NM District kids camp will look different this year. Unfortunately, our elementary children will not be having kids camp in person at Bonita Park. Instead, we will be offering virtual camp material via pre-recorded video lessons for each church to utilize at their convenience at their individual facilities. Each church can use this material as they see fit such as for a daycamp, a VBS opportunity, or even several weeks of Wednesday night activities. We understand that this is disappointing, as it is disappointing to us, but it is the best option at this time for the elementary school age children. More information will be on the NM district webpage soon. We are looking forward to this year's camp, and also to the possibility that God will use this new format to reach our children in a whole new way!

The Camp Leadership Team

Thanks,

Mark
